Credit Card Rental Car Collision Coverage Guidelines

Primary vs. Secondary Credit Card Coverage

Many credit cards (such as Chase Sapphire Reserve, Capital One Venture X, Amex Premium Car Rental Protection) offer auto rental collision damage waivers:

- Primary Coverage: Pays first without notifying your personal auto insurance provider.
- Secondary Coverage: Requires you to file a claim with your domestic auto insurer first; the card pays only your deductible.

Mandatory Steps to Activate Credit Card Coverage

1. Decline Apex CDW/LDW: You must explicitly decline the Apex Collision Damage Waiver at the counter.
2. Pay Entire Rental with That Card: The full reservation must be paid and authorized on the specific eligible credit card.
3. Be the Primary Renter: The cardholder's name must match the primary renter listed on the contract.

Important Apex Policy Note

If you decline Apex CDW and rely on credit card coverage, you remain personally liable to Apex for damages up to the full market value of the vehicle until your credit card issuer processes and reimburses the claim. A temporary credit card security authorization of $500 is placed on the card at pickup (instead of $200).
